

shoot magpies and even sometimes go into the spring and catch fish with their hands. All of these made good eating over a bon-fire, along with the lunch they would take with them.

The fall of 1936 the haying season had come to a close and Tom along with his dad and some brothers and sisters had just finished putting the last load of hay on the stack. Dad always used the slips to stand around the stack to keep out the stock and deer. As one of the slips was put on it's end before it could be secured in place, it fell, falling over Tom's leg just below the hip. He had to ride to Heber where he was kept in traction for some time before it could be set and casted. Many friends and relatives visited him during the ten weeks he spent at his Aunt Myrtle Clifts. They would comment how cheerful and humorous he was and they came out happier than when they went in.

Tom loved scouting and his scout master, our neighbor Oran Curry. Kent gave him much encouragement and help in helping him advance. He was a life scout when he was thirteen. He was very proud of his priesthood and was to serve in the capacity of a deacon.

The Christmas of thirty eight, as always the married kids as well as the rest of the family, were together at home in Hanna. The day after Christmas Tom's brother-in-law, Clyde Rice came and got the boys to take them hunting rabbits with their new twenty twos. They went down below Tabby just above where the Duchesne-208 highway junction is now. The greasewood and sage brush were taller than the boys were and the boys were going through them slowly, hoping to see a rabbit. The trigger of one of the boys guns caught on a bush and accidentally discharged, the bullet striking Tom just above the right eye, traveling through the head and coming out near the base of the skull. They brought him to Grace's home in Tabby where Dean Powell, the mail carrier, administered first aide. Doctor Murray from Duchesne came but there was nothing he could do. Tom was unconscious and appeared to be paralyzed on his right side. This condition continued for three days and after much faith and many prayers, was able to return to He who sent him. December 30, just after midnight, he died. His funeral was held in the Hanna Ward chapel with his boy scout troop as pall bearers. He was buried on his fourteenth birthday in the Tabiona Cemetery.

WILLIAM EARL AND RUBY MAE STANLEY GILES

William Earl, fourth child and second son of Thomas Monroe and Martha Buys Giles, was born Thanksgiving Day November 25, 1909 in Heber City, Wasatch County, Utah. He was born early in the day and by the time Grandma Giles got dinner ready, mom was so hungry she ate all the dinner Grandma sent her much to her surprise.

At the age of three Mom entered Earl in a beauty contest at Black Hawk Days in Heber. Earl won the first prize but at such an early age you wouldn't think it would go to his head, but I think it did. He was always a pretty fair ladies man, and very handsome.

Earl was raised in Hanna with much to be done. He attended school at Hanna, sometimes riding a horse along with Ray and Grace but most of the time walking the mile each way. He attended school in Heber when he graduated from the eighth grade. At this time the school and church were both one building but later a new church was built a few rods up the road from the school.

He worked for anyone that would hire him. He especially enjoyed working for Ed Adair the forest ranger. He, Ray, and dad would always lift and lower the fence each spring and fall between private ground and the forest, besides the other work that was to be done.

He was fortunate enough to have a Model T Ford to do some of his courting with and it didn't take quite so long to get from Tabby to Hanna. He met and married Ruby Mae Stanley, on December 11, 1928. They went to Hanna and got Joe Wilcken, then went to the ranch home of Grace and Chum where they were married. They went and told Ruby's folks, Burton and Annie Davis Stanley, who lived about a half mile on down the road below Chum's Ranch.

They lived in Hanna for a few years, Earl working on the State Road, at sawmill and other jobs. Earl, Ferrus, Ercel Nye, Carl Rhoades, Eugene Rhoades among others were working in the Blind Stream area for Charley Fabrizio. They would settle up each month to see if they owed Charley or if they had some pay coming. One month Ruby went down to do the settling. Charley brought out the bills the fellows had acquired from the store and the ones she had gotten. As she went over the guys bills she found sugar written about three times a week. She inquired as to what they did with so much sugar and found that sugar meant beer. Beer couldn't be charged but sugar could. Needless to say there wasn't much sugar on the bill from then on.

They moved to Heber City in 1938, where they moved into an old rock building that was so warm in the winter and cool in the summer. Earl went to work for the Park Utah Mine working there and other mines until they closed down. He then went to the Fish Hatchery at Midway, where he was working when he had a massive heart attack.

For the next eighteen years he worked at times and at times he was unable. He had four or five heart attacks during this time, but he always enjoyed many good trips and reunions with his family and friends. In December of 1978 he and Ruby celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. He remodeled their home in Heber to a beautiful and comfortable place to live.

On August 13, 1979 Earl had his last heart attack while he was at his family reunion in Mirror Lake Country. He lay in a hospital for ten days in semi-consciousness before dying August 23, 1979. He was buried in the Heber City Cemetery.

Ruby has kept herself busy with temple work, as she and Earl were temple workers before his death. Ruby is now District Genealogical Librarian in Wasatch Stake.
